Course History 1919-2009

Developed in 1919 the original golf course at Cold Spring Country Club was designed by world-renowned architect Seth Raynor. Raynor at the time was working with legendary architect CB MacDonald. MacDonald and Raynor were commissioned by developer Otto H. Kahn, who owned and built Oheka Castle, however Cold Spring was Raynor's project to be had. Raynor's design credits with MacDonald include, however are not limited to, such prestigious golf courses as the Creek Club, National Golf Links of America, and the Yale University Golf Course. His personal credits include but are not limited to Fishers Island Golf Club, the Country Club of Charleston (SC) and the Mid Ocean Club in Bermuda. The course was later redesigned in 1968 by legendary designer Robert Trent Jones. Today Cold Spring maintains this fabulous tradition and is considered one of the premier private courses on Long Island's North Shore, offering stunning views of Oheka Castle and the Long Island Sound.
